THE ORGANISED SPORT IN GERMANY

In Germany, sport is organised by sport clubs. A sport club is an association, which enables sports enthusiasts to do sports. For this purpose, the sport club provides facilities, equipment and sport activities. Thus, the members of a sport club form the basic level in a sport club. The sport club itself is both a member of the Kreis- or Stadtsportbund [district or city sport association] and of a Sportfachverband [sport federation]. These two organisations are members of the Landessportbund [federal sports federation].

STÜTZPUNKTVEREINE [BASE CLUBS] FOR INTEGRATION IN THE DISTRICT OF KLEVE

Sport clubs participating in the program for integration work are called Stützpunktvereine [base clubs].

The work on integration issues of the Stützpunktverein is a developing process, at the end of which integration shall become a natural cross-sectional task of regular operations and intercultural opening shall develop continuously within the sport club.

In the course of this development process, the work of a Stützpunktverein is characterized by the following exemplary criteria:

A Stützpunktverein acts sustainably by ...

- engaging particularly in the integration of people with migrant background, refugees and/or deprived people by doing sports in a sport club.
- not considering integration to be a special task or a separate project, but as a cross-sectional task embedded sustainably in the club.
- supporting intercultural competence of its staff, volunteers and members.
- networking with relevant partners of integration work within the social environment.
- engaging in active public relations regarding its integration work
